7th Notenspur Night of Home-made Music on 20.11. 2021

Music dwells among us and connects us by sharing it with each other.

We want to bring this guiding idea of the Leipziger Notenspur to life again this year for the Notenspur Night of Home-made Music. Hosts will open their (private) premises. In this way, we are reviving the idea of house music, because the music evenings are not to take place in rooms where concerts are usually held, but in apartments, stairwells, meeting places, social welfare centers, doctors' offices, workshops, stores, museums, etc.

If you would like to be a host or play as a musician yourself on November 20, please register at www.notenspur-leipzig.de/hausmusik.

Under the motto "Hausmusik geht ins Revier" (Home-made Music Goes to the Territory), hosts from the rural districts of Leipzig and North Saxony will also be able to register starting this year. From the beginning of November 2021, visitors will have the opportunity to register as guests.

We are very pleased about the interest from the region!

Who can participate?

Hosts,

- who open their doors not only to music-loving friends, but also to (as yet) unknown guests
- whose apartments, studios, offices or practices are large enough for this
- who like to host and would like to fulfill this role for the Home-made Music Night
- who make music themselves, organize musicians themselves or would like to make use of our mediation service for musicians

Musicians,

- who have enjoyed a sound musical education
- who enjoy making music together and would like to share their love of music with other people
- who are curious and accept the challenge of making music outside of concert halls in a small setting
- who want to make music in their own home or have us arrange for them to do so in another home.

The Notenspur Night of House Music is a non-commercial event. The hosts provide their apartments free of charge, the musicians receive no fee.

Please understand that we may have to adapt the house music evenings to changing hygiene regulations at short notice.
